Students walk through these halls every day. Each has his special destination and his own unique way of reaching it. Jim strides confidently, smiling at everyone he passes. Diane treads softly with her head shyly dropped. John towers above the masses. Janice steps lightly, petite and charming.

Maximum individual development requires recognition of individual variabilities and acceptance of these differences as being normal.

In our school a forward-looking administration and faculty recognize and deal with individuals. Ability grouping, programmed learning, the choice of a course of study, and timely conferences and words of encouragement to personalize learning, compensate for obvious differences.

All these are necessary and justified to the extent that they keep the development of the individual student first and foremost—to help him become the complete person God intended him to be. If this is done, then students are more likely not only to become a significant force for good, but also to benefit personally from a well-rounded education.

These are individuals. Their singularities are referred to as . . .

ADMINISTRATORS DISCUSS* merger.

Highlighting the past year of the Mars Area Joint School Board were the official merging of the school district in January and the promulgation of evaluation results from the preceding year.

A Team of evaluators representing the Middle Atlantic States Accrediting Association studied the high school in March, 1964. Results were received in late fall. Mars became an accredited school district with a high rating.

Due to legislation passed by the state congress, Pennsylvania school districts were required to merge for a more efficient system. Although the Mars Area Joint School was virtually unaffected, the school board diminished in size from 20 members to an Interim Operating Committee of nine. This reduction was accomplished in January by an election of nine school directors from the existing 20. Aided by the Advisory Committee composed of the remaining members, the Interim Operating Committee assumed the duties of the Board.

The size of the school board has been altered, but the goal, the best education for the available finances, remains unchanged.

Educating every student to meet individual needs is vital to the board.

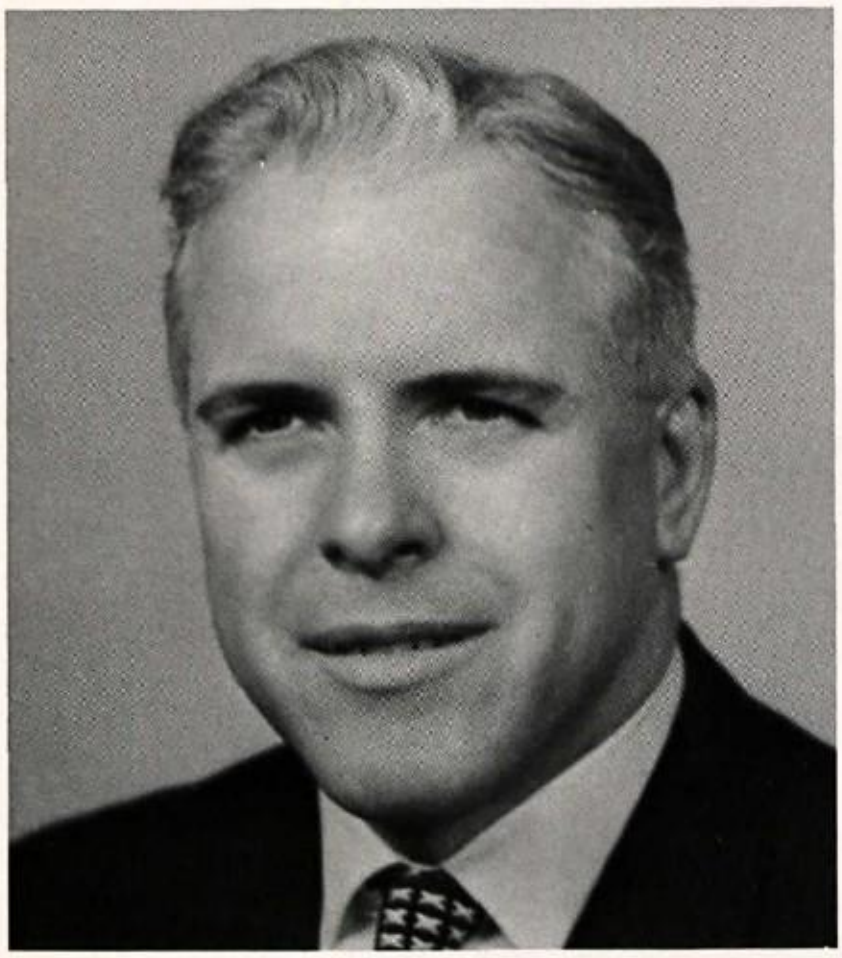
Mr. Robert C. Downie
High School Principal



Mr. F. Patrick Long
Elementary Principal

The scope of administrative work is diverse and complex. School board effort must be linked with the individual student as teachers are selected and curriculums are planned. Student's individual problems must be considered and resolved.

Piloting the high school, Mr. Robert C. Downie administers to the needs of the 49 faculty members and 979 individual students. The principal directs new programs, such as the enrichment program and instructional materials center. Advanced courses in summer school compose a phase of the enrichment program. It is augmented by the TEMAC program, reading programs, and a possible Honor's course in English-Social Studies. The Instructional Materials Center contains audio-visual materials, films, and a professional library for faculty.

As Supervising Principal, Dr. Albert Manerino guides the complete educational effort of the school system. He allocates sufficient time in his schedule for both students between the elementary and secondary schools.

Mr. F. P. Long is the elementary principal and co-ordinates the primary and intermediate school. The elementary program was under evaluation this year. New ideas in this area are the study of Modern Math. Also newly introduced is an experimental reading program, teaching the I.T.A. rather than the traditional 26 letter alphabet.

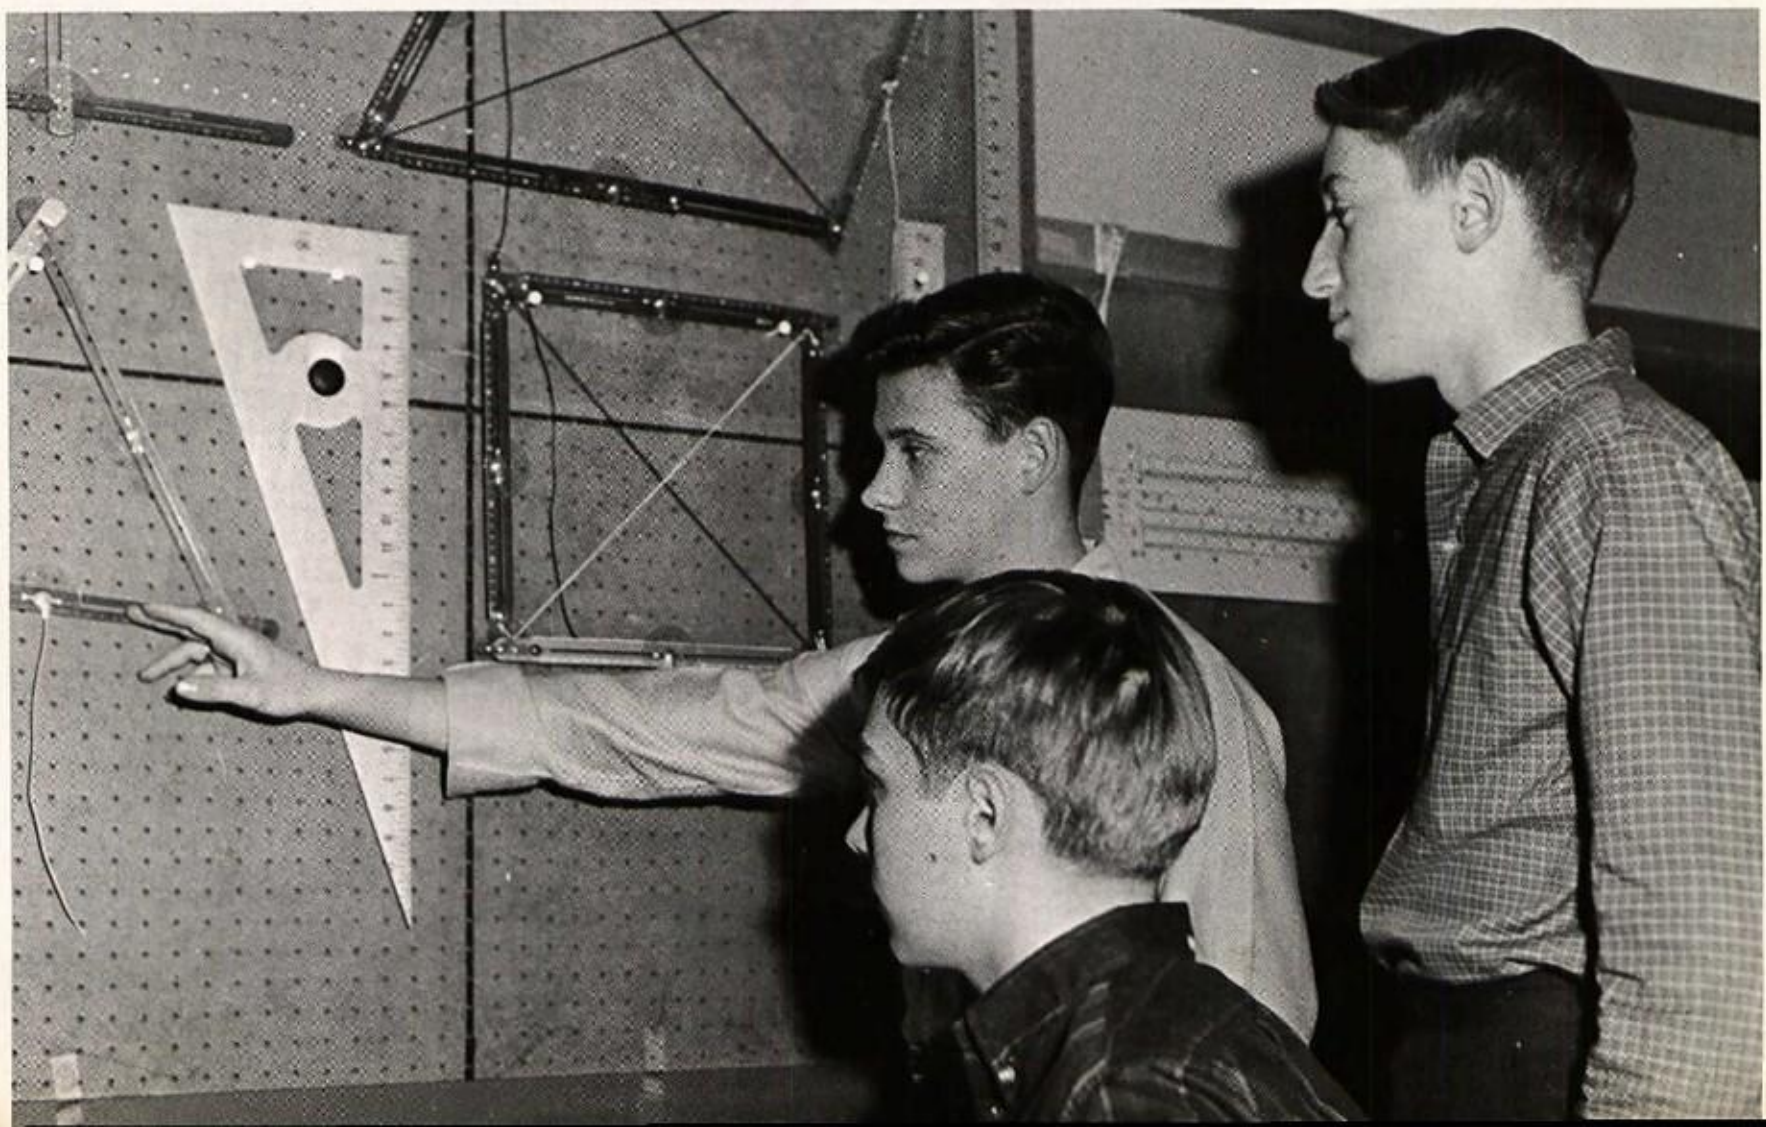
Relevant to the interests and curriculum of the student, the field of mathematics is becoming increasingly important to the modern individual. Courses are designed with the theory of developing the individual's capacity to the fullest extent according to his or her ability.

The advanced program, initiated several years ago, plans to provide a challenge for the accelerated students. During seventh grade they study a combined two-year course which enables them to begin Algebra I in eighth grade. They advance one year ahead of other students, and during their senior year an introductory course of calculus and analytic geometry is offered for interested and capable pupils.

TEMAC, a supplementary program organized under the National Defense Education Act, was introduced to Mars students during 64-65, its initial year. Representing Clarion and Slippery Rock State Colleges, Dr. Johnston initiated the programmed materials to twenty schools in this area, including Mars High. During the first semester special math pupils were invited to study Introductory Descriptive Statistics. Both the subject and the senior high participants were highly selective. Students complete the study on their own, at home, and the course requires approximately 30-45 minutes each school day. This project is designed to deepen understanding through a revised college course and to stress individual effort and self-teaching.

Because there is a demand for advanced courses and new methods of instruction, the faculty members attend special courses during the summer so that they might be more qualified to aid the individual in his understanding of this essential subject.

GEOMETRY TOOLS intrigue John McCormick, David Erny, and David Fuhr.*



Utilized in Science

Five years ago manned space flight was still a dream in the minds of a few scientists. Three years ago John Glenn orbited the world before the hypnotized eyes of millions of television watchers. Today plans are under way for a three-man flight to the moon. There is no doubt about it; science is moving forward.

To keep up with the pace the Mars Area High School science department offers up-to-date instruction in contemporary courses. Physics, chemistry, and biology coordinate classroom lectures and laboratory study. Lab periods provide time for experimentation. Teachers and pupils share their time to alleviate special problems.

Physics is one of the basic physical sciences that primarily deal with non-living aspects of nature. Modern physics, taught in Mars Area High School, combines the classical study of heat, sound, and electricity with such newer concepts as the structure and properties of atoms.

The second physical science, chemistry, considers the composition of matter and the properties and reactions that cause new substances to form. Lab experiments serve to verify theories developed in classroom lectures.

Biology is concerned with the study of living things. The tiny euglena which has both plant and animal characteristics divides the science into the plant and animal kingdoms. Dissection of laboratory specimens provides opportunity for study in depth.

Qualified freshmen may schedule biology instead of a third year general science. This advanced program allows them an extra year to take advantage of elective courses.

From seventh grade general science to senior science or chemistry, the student is prepared to be an informed citizen in this scientific age.

JOHNSON WINS mock presidential election sposored by social studies department.*

Through application of the social sciences, students are prepared to capably face contemporary problems and find more effective solutions.

Senior high social studies introduce concepts necessary to those individuals who will soon undertake adult social and political responsibility. World Cultures provides a broad understanding of human traditions, while American History encourages pupils to search for solutions in today's world by analyzing the past. Economic understanding and practical sociology are taught in the Problems of Democracy course.

Special courses and projects are being offered to qualified students. TEMAC, an advanced program for select individuals in "human behavior", is given to students in a "programmed course." In a new reading program, sophomores with a 3.7 average and juniors who acquire a 3.8 have the privilege of suspending homework and reporting on two or three books each nine weeks.

Anthropology and social psychology are stressed more as important phases in developing the student's comprehension of human behavior and the nature of the complex contemporary society. Emphasis is now placed upon making the individual inquire, think critically, and formulate his own conclusions.

The basic philosophy of the English department is founded on four principles. These include influencing the student to listen intelligently, to read thoughtfully, to express himself effectively, and to think critically.

Through the study of literature, the student gains a better understanding of human nature. Class discussions encourage the student to express his opinion effectively. Writing assignments encourage creative thinking. Adaptations to the individual levels of each student's ability and interest are attempted by the use of projects, poetry, essays, editorials, dramatizations, and research.

Awareness of the power of the spoken word is acquired through speech class. Students learn control of the English language in order to influence others favorably toward their position.

The Journalism class disseminates school news by means of the Planet Dust. Novice reporters learn the style of writing and specialized knowledge peculiar to journalism in a workshop atmosphere.

Recommended reading lists were prepared for use by senior high students. In addition, a standard style sheet for use in assigning research papers was provided for all the departments.

Languages, Library, and

A Spanish student plays back a recording of his pronunciation. A French student conducts a club meeting in French. A Latin student challenges his classmates to a spelling bee.

This is Mars High School's foreign language department in action. Emphasis is on the individual. Classroom lectures impart a knowledge of grammar. Degree of student interest and cooperation determines his capacity to strengthen his command of the language.

Mrs. Marybelle Anderson

LATIN

Two years of Latin revive interest in that dead language and introduce students to the Roman history, customs, and art. Furthermore, it furnishes a basic foundation for studying modern languages. Sophomore projects and freshmen term papers intensify interest in the field of study.

FRENCH

First year French students concentrate their studies on the spoken language with class conversations and laboratory records. Second and third year classes develop grammar skills and spend time in writing and comprehensive reading. "Practice makes perfect" is the maxim applied to aural-oral methods of instruction.

Mr. Claude Gaiser
French

SPANISH

To promote better understanding of the customs and traditions of world neighbors is one goal of the Spanish course. Use of the language laboratory results in more accurate pronunciation. Coordinated textbooks and records provide a basic foundation in grammar from which students achieve fluent speech.

Guidance Offer "Helping Hand"

Mr. James Charlton
Guidance

The guidance department consists of two levels. Mr. Eugene Danser heads the senior-high division and Mr. Robert Simmons, the junior-high division.

Intelligence, aptitude, achievement, and interest tests were given throughout the year to determine the ability of the students.

Individual interviews as well as student-teacher conferences offer a "helping hand" to students who may need help or advice.

Another important phase of this department is the special education given to the "slow learners." Mr. Charlton has spent many long hours in service to these students. Working with the students individually, he is able to give them the special attention that they need. Through basic study and skills, the students are able to do work up to their ability.

Under the direction of Mrs. Vida Hudson, the library showed outstanding progress in the circulation of books this year. Because of this the library was kept open after school to any student who was searching for knowledge.

With research papers and monthly book reports, the library was a great asset to all the students. Information of all types was available to those who were interested.

A number of new books and regular magazines were available to the students.

With its warm and quiet atmosphere the library was a haven for any "researcher" or "browser."

"To train youth for the business world" is the main objective of the business department at Mars Area High School.

Shorthand, Typing, and Bookkeeping are among the subjects taught to prepare the students for future office work. Besides book work, the students are also instructed to operate up-to-date office equipment.

Distributed Education, a great aid to the commercial students, has been added to the department. During the second semester of the senior year a group of girls are selected to work for a period of nine weeks at companies throughout the community. It gives them on-the-job training plus a short glimpse of what is to be expected in their future jobs.

Through the business department the students are given information which will be of great value to them in their future. Also the department helps them to select a job at which they are best suited.

Artistic and musical talents of the students are developed, and creativity is stressed by the teachers of the music and art departments.

The primary objective of crafts is to encourage individuals to develop their creative ability. Each pupil is assigned his own particular project.

Art students express their feelings through oil, water colors, sketches, and pastels. Miss Gardner encourages the artistic pupils through individual projects and preparing scenery for stage productions.

Highlighting the musical program was the choral presensation of South Pacific. Mrs. Horwitz desires to provide individuals with a cultural experience and to instruct them in vocal techniques.

Individual discipline along with mental and muscular coordination are two of the greatest personal benefits provided through the band.

Industrial Arts

Mr. Wayne Magness
Electricity,
Plastics

Instruction in basic use of metal, plastic, and wood is the responsibility of the industrial arts program. Mars High provides adequate facilities to develop manual dexterity, and students learn about basic and advanced tools. Drafting and the use of blueprints are taught as well.

A standard requirement for all of the seventh grade boys is the taking of woodshop. As the boys are taught safety and the use of hand tools, they progress to more complex apparatus such as the drill press, mortising machine, and jig saw.

Correct methods and a concern for safety in the shop are instilled in the students. Lectures and demonstrations are integral components of this course, for a student must have a thorough understanding of a machine or specific operation before he can safely and effectively make use of the apparatus.

In the shop students are permitted to proceed at their own rate. For the specially skilled individual, personal projects are encouraged.

Although the industrial arts program is very comprehensive, it is by no means explicit. It was designed and developed, not for the purpose of teaching a trade or profession, but rather to introduce the student to trade skills which might be useful in the home or stimulate certain students to enter a vocational field which may appeal to them.

The courses available to the students include: Electricity and Plastics, Woodshop, Mechanical Drawing, and Metal Shop.

To employ the knowledge a student acquires in school and to enjoy life, the individual should be in good physical condition. It is the task of the physical education department to develop each student to the limit of his capability.

A fundamental knowledge of the traditional sports, such as softball, basketball, and volleyball is taught. Students use modern gym equipment which can be adjusted to fit the individual's size.

In addition to the traditional studies of anatomy and physiology, eighth grade students are taught first aid, including artificial respiration.

Seniors taking Health learn the workings of the human body and also the functioning of the human mind. Skits and panel discussions illustrated these points.

In connection with their studies of emotional and mental illness, seniors planning to enter the medical field or an associated field, toured Woodville State Mental Hospital. A question and answer session followed the tour.

Mrs. Jean Hammond, a registered nurse, has been added as a member of the Health Department. Formerly, she served as school nurse in the Adams Grade School.

MRS. GARDNER and Mrs. Hammond experiment with organic compounds.

BOYS GYM class plays soccer outdoors.

Drivers' Ed., Home Ec., Nurse

Dissimilarities in the physical, mental, and emotional aspects of each student warrant the necessity for individual consultation and instruction. Proper techniques and skills of traffic safety are stressed in the Drivers' Education classes.

Having mastered the fundamentals of safe driving and familiarized themselves with the state laws, the students are taken to the state police barracks to receive their drivers' examination.

Interest, an essential element in any classroom, is achieved in home economics through a pleasant, informal atmosphere. The students are provided with attractive rooms and excellent equipment.

Students are permitted to work at their own pace in clothing, and they work in families in foods. Because of the class atmosphere, students may help each other.

Sympathetic teachers try to treat each person as an individual, giving adequate help to all. Their aim is to create an interesting type of work to the students, thus creating a desire to "want" to participate and to accomplish work which results in praise from the teacher and parents.

Administering to the individual needs of each of her patients is the continuous job of the school nurse, Mrs. Helen Knaell. Five fully-equipped, sanitary health rooms comprise the medical department of our school.

Mrs. Helen Knaell divides her time between the high school and the Adams Elementary School. While she is at the elementary school, senior girls stay in the medical suite handling small accidents and contacting Mrs. Knaell in case of emergencies.

IN MEMORIAM

On December 12, 1964, Dr. Harry H. Morris died suddenly. The school physician for many years, he had made great contributions to the welfare of Mars students. He had aided pupils not only by giving the traditional physicals and examinations, but also by taking care of any students who are injured on school property. The well-being of the students was placed in his hands. The whole community as well as the school system, had been served by him. The death of Dr. Morris was a tragic loss for all.

"If thou hast gathered nothing in thy youth, how canst thou find anything in thine age?"

—M. Tupper

Considering the future with conviction is difficult as a senior looks at graduation with mixed emotions. He is happy; he is sad; he is somber; he is glad.

Events from the past: the first day of school, the first football game, the first date, the first formal dance, and now it is all over—except for new uncertainties, joys, and successes.

During the senior year the guidance dept. administered many tests to determine the abilities of the students. In November, fifteen of the commercial students took the Pennsylvania Employment Aptitude Test. This exam was given to test their abilities and help them in securing jobs. Eighteen academic and scientific students took the Pennsylvania State Scholarship Test in November. These students were able to take it because of their high scholastic average. If any qualified they would be eligible to receive $250 a year in scholarship grants provided they planned to attend a college in Pennsylvania. Among the other exams were the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test and the annual college boards given in both December and January.

The year was filled with gaiety as well as school work. One of the many fun-filled events which will always remain in the memories of the seniors was the annual prom. "The Enchanted South" set the mood for the dance. Dancing under weeping willow trees and beautiful pink magnolia blossoms, the seniors had their last get-together.

As the year came to a close, the seniors realized the greater responsibilities ahead of them and promised themselves that they would meet them. Walking down the aisle on the night of commencement they knew that Mars High and all its memories would remain with them always.

Auf Wiedersehen

Standing on the steps of City Hall, Berlin, the late John F. Kennedy said: "Ich bin ein Berliner" (I am a Berliner.) Five months later, 60,000 of my people with tear-stained faces and silent shuffling feet mourned the loss of your fallen hero.

From August, 1964 to August, 1965, I (Susanne Richter) have lived as part of an American family, sharing the abundance of the American way of life for which that "fellow-Berliner" had died.

I shopped in your supermarkets . . . rode in nice cars (everyday) . . . attended your modern school . . . made friends . . . ran to keep pace with my schedule (in fact, I never stopped running until the end of my stay) . . . participated in your athletics . . . enjoyed your concerts . . . concentrated on the American ideals and customs . . . worshipped in your churches . . . wept in moments of emotion and disappointment . . . and enjoyed your love and understanding.

I sincerely hope that America will never sacrifice its heritage for a life in an overly materialistic world.

I am deeply grateful to each individual and group responsible for my American visit. May our efforts aid in bringing a closer relationship between Germany and America in the years to come.

New York and the World's Fair

"New York, New York, it's a wonderful town!" The members of the Senior class will agree with that after their short, but lively, visit there.

The Class of '65 began their New York adventure with a ride on the ferry to the Statue of Liberty. The rainy weather gave extra impetus for the long climb up the narrow, spiral stairway.

A tour of Manhattan and a view from the top of the Empire State Building followed. A spectacular stage show and a movie at Radio City Music Hall ended the first day.

Alice's trip through the looking glass was no more exciting than the Seniors' trip to the New York World's Fair. As aching feet testified, one day is not long enough to see the Fair.

The last day was filled with a tour of New York from the Bowery to Chinatown. After visiting the impressive United Nations building, everyone rushed to the Commodore Hotel to pack.

On the long ride home, everyone was tired but happy as they recalled the joys of their trip to New York.

ACCOMMODATIONS! Excellent?

HEAD 'EM UP. Move 'em Out.

FOOD! Is It Worth It?

OH! My Aching Feet!

The BIG City.

JUNIORS

"Why, this schoolroom is the gateway to all the problems of humanity-to happiness, to health, to brotherhood-to everything." —Junior Play

This quote from the Junior Class Play, "The Thread That Runs So True," expressed the feeling of many juniors toward education.

To emulate standards set by the students of "Lonesome Valley," juniors advanced scholastically as well as socially. Studying the rise of the American nation and the phases of American Literature, the students were better able to develop a sense of this heritage. Students who have met the challenge of physics and conquered the mysteries of bookkeeping were provided with a sound background for future study. Qualified scholars were offered special courses in "programmed learning" to augment the curriculum offered by Mars High.

The National Educational Development tests and Iowa Tests of Educational Development measured the progress and scholastic ability of the Juniors.

Whether the students were working hard in a football stand or enjoying themselves at their masquerade ball, their junior year was one of many triumphs for the "Class of '66."

SOPHOMORES

"Our destiny exercises its influence over us even when, as yet, we have not learned its nature; it is our future that lays down the law of our today."

—Friedrich Nietzsche

This quote clearly applies to the sophomores, who, although carefree and fun loving, also portrayed their serious minded attitudes towards the future.

Inquisitive and creative, the sophomore class showed a great amount of talent in choosing an appropriate theme for their first class party. The theme, "Guitars and Bongos," provided an exotic atmosphere through the use of a tropical setting, palm trees, and a thatched hut. The dance was held October 21, and included various novelty dances.

Major emphasis this year was placed on the development of their class treasury. The collection of dues, followed by the sale of blue and gold pens and turtle pins, were their major campaigns.

But the sophomores didn't spend all their time worrying about ways to make money. Intellectual capabilities were demonstrated by the results of the National Educational Development Test, held on March 13.

Not only have creative and intellectual achievements been noted in the "Class of 67," they also appear to have all the necessary requirements for the leaders of tomorrow. Only time can tell.

"The direction in which education starts a man will determine his future life."

—Plato

"Parlez-vous francais?" and "Como esta Ud" are familiar phrases to language students in this year's Freshman Class. In addition to the traditional two years of Latin, the pupils are able to take four years of these popular Romance languages. Qualified students may study Algebra II, and those who are interested in the structure and activities of living organisms may substitute Biology I for General Science.

Individuals play an important part in the activities and social affairs of the "Class of '68." Entertainment for the October "Kickoff Dance" was provided by the Shafer brothers, who played their electric quitars. Fleet halfback Don Philips was a member of the Varsity squad, and even though he did not letter this year, his high achievement is worthy of recognition. Movies were shown to the class by Dave and Dan Kroh, whose parents are on furlough from the Congo where they are medical missionaries.

Tests aided the students in deciding the subjects and fields in which they would specialize in later years. Individual abilities and preferences were revealed through Kuder Preference Tests which all freshmen took. Freshmen who wanted to compete with other Junior and Senior High students could take the National Education Development Test.

EIGHTH GRADE OFFICERS: Carol Balfour, Secretary; Larry Basilone, Vice President; Thomas Meals, Treasurer; Patrick Smith, President.

"Education is the highest expression of achievement in our society, ennobling and enriching human life."
—John Fitzgerald Kennedy

Jingle Bell Hop, a Halloween party, and dances comprised a portion of the year for the "Class of '69." Yet these activities were only a small part of the year for the eighth grade.

Academic goals were kept in the foreground. The Iowa Test of Basic Skills were administered to determine the students' achievement during the last year. At the end of the school year, each pupil was able to decide whether he will follow the scientific, academic, technical, commercial, or general course of study in the next four years of school.

Individual guidance and testing was stressed, with each student receiving a personal interview with the guidance counselor. Tests of find speech, reading, and hearing deficiencies were given and special instruction was given those who required it. The guidance department cooperated with the Butler County Office of Psychological Service to aid any student who needed their services. Prognostic testing was used to verify a student's ability to perform well in a certain course.

7th GRADE

"Love of learning is a pleasant and universal bond, since it deals with what one is and not what one has."

Freya Stark

It was remotely heard at the distant end of the hall, but it grew. It strengthened. Soon the sound of exuberant voices resounded. The countenances of one hundred-eighty young scholars gazed upon foreign walls for the first time. The new seventh grade, the class of '70, had arrived.

Within the ranks of the energetic lot were numerous types of individuals, but they were united in a common cause to learn. Education had engulfed their spirits.

They assumed a definite role in sports and literary activities. With maturity, the student government was supported. Recognizing the urgency for fellowship, two very popular dances were held in the early part of the term.

To stress individual programs, interviews with the guidance counselor were provided for each student.

Profiting by the experience gained in the Intermediate Building, the class of '70 exhibited unusual development in scholastic and social events. The potentials of this class would be tremendous. This would be the class to watch!

National Honor Society Expands.

OFFICERS: President, B. Brown; Secretary-Treasurer, E. Voller; Vice President, K. Cashdollar.

"Scholarship, leadership, character, and service" is the motto of the National Honor Society. For the first time at Mars Area High School, sophomore and junior members have been admitted to the National Honor Society. In former years, only seniors were eligible to join.

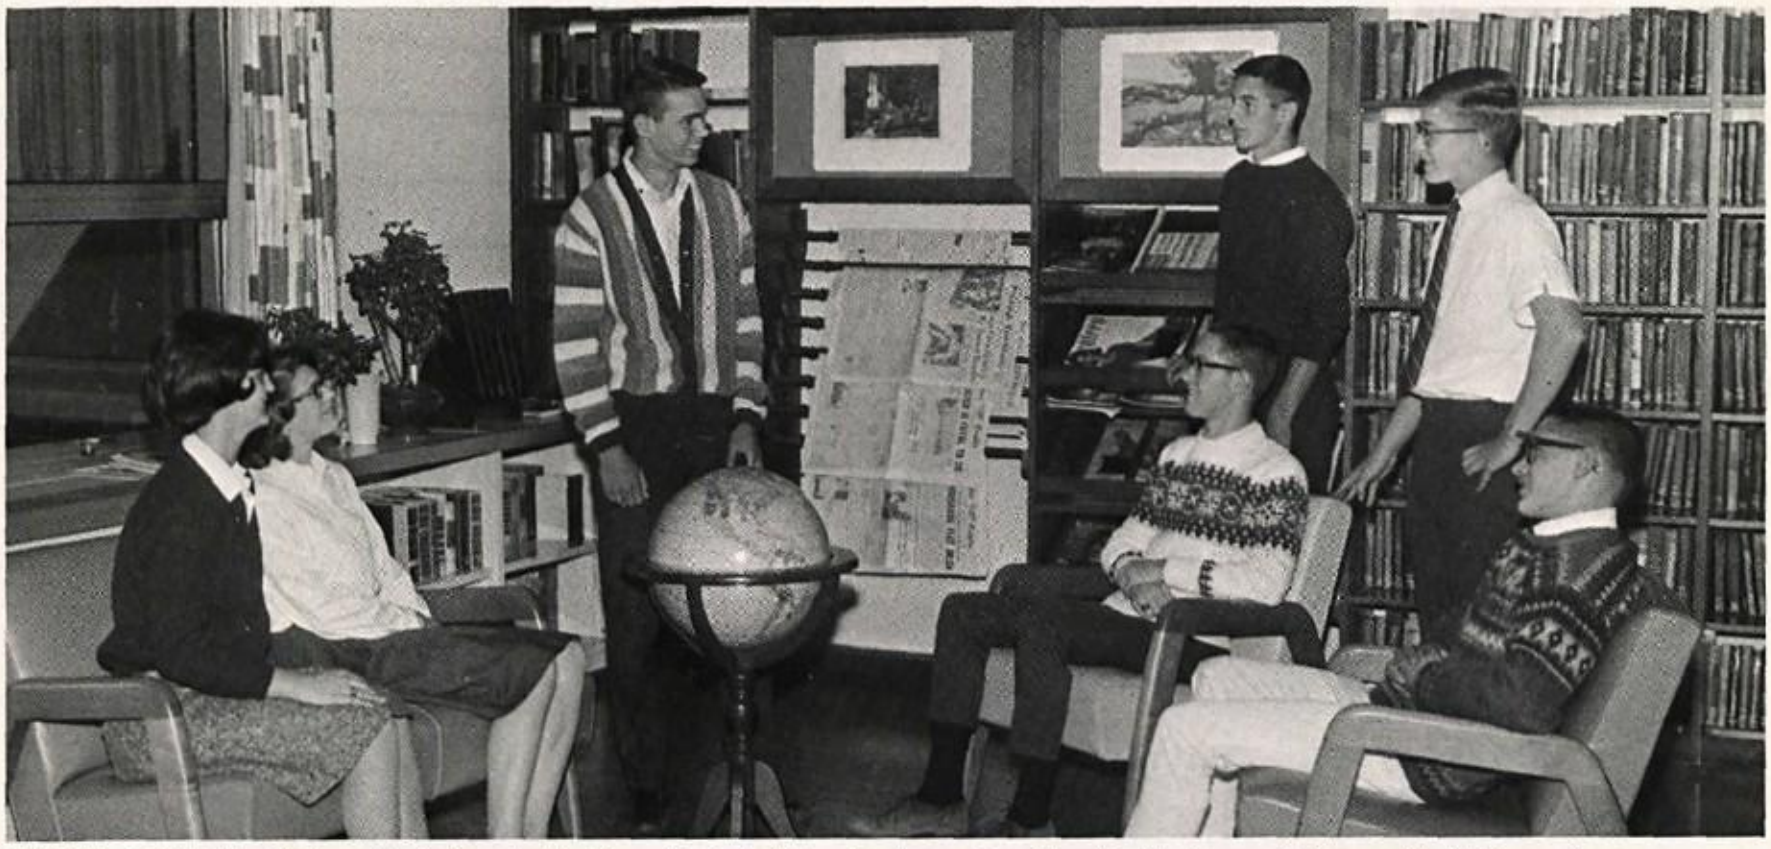
April 28 marked the date of the first initiation ceremony of the National Honor Society. New members were inducted by senior members during a solemn ceremony in an assembly program.

To become a member, a student must have at least a 3.0 average and take five solid subjects each year. A faculty council must approve each student who applies for membership on his qualities of leadership and character.

Taking charge of the commencement ceremony is one of the responsibilities of the senior National Honor Society members. They provide a theme and various members act as speakers.

The addition of junior and sophomore members this year was the first step toward the creation of a more active group. Although the late organization of the National Honor Society this year made any further projects impossible, tentative plans for next year's programs have been made.

Student Council Generates School Spirit



SENIOR COUNCIL—Sitting: V. Yurko, E. Hawkins, K. Cashdollar, B. Brown. Standing: D. Henderson, S. Leone, M. McDonough.

Susanne Richter's arrival fulfilled a dream initiated by last year's student council. The pleasant task of welcoming a German exchange student and helping her adapt to American life remained for this year's council. Susanne's presence triggered a one-day exchange of foreign students with neighboring schools.

Student Council Peptomists strived to unite Mars students into a nucleus of spirit about which school functions could revolve.

Profits from after-the-game sock hops, plus receipts from the prosperous student store bought a new hi-fi for the social functions.

The council was composed of the senior high council, advised by Mr. Danser, and the junior high council, sponsored by Mr. Simmons. Together, the representatives served as the voice of the student body, sharing the responsibility to act in the best interests of the Mars Area High School student body.

COMBINED STUDENT COUNCILS—First Row: S. Richter, B. Brown, M. McDouough, K. Cashdollar, E. Hawkins, V. Anderson, V. Yurko, D. Henderson. Second Row: H. Mazuch, D. Barber, D. Patterson, K. Future Teachers Plan Careers

FUTURE TEACHERS—First Row: K. Rieck, E. Augustine, K. Smith, M. Funfare, M. Gaucher, P. Lapinski, M. Hudson, M. Lappan. Second Row: S. Meals, S. Deem, B. Erny, B. Franceschina, P. Gaspain, E. Bicehouse, B. Kennihan, J. Barber.

"Who would want to be a teacher?" is the attitude of many students. The members of the Future Teachers of America want to be. Gaining experience and knowledge of the teaching profession is the aim of the club.

Two days were set aside during which interested students were permitted to teach. In addition, a program was set up in which the students could aid teachers in the task of correcting routine papers.

During American Education Week, the members acted as hosts by guiding guests in the school.

FUTURE TEACHERS—Edgar McGee, left, sponsor of the Future Teachers of America club (F.T.A.), talks over lesson plans for student teaching day with Bill Brown, Amy Bogdanich, and Kathy Smith.

Spanish Club

Increasing knowledge of and stimulating interest in Spanish speaking countries was the intention of this year's Spanish Club. At the initial meetings Miss Aloe presented slides on her trip to Mexico.

For initiation, the prospective members, who must acquire a 2.5 average, had to perform several stunts. They must maintain a 2.0 average to remain in the club.

In the spring, the club held a dinner in which Spanish dishes were served.

French Club

To stimulate interest in the French language and the culture and traditions of the country was the goal of the French Club. Conducting all their meetings in French strengthened their speaking ability.

Prospective members applied for admission in February and were accepted on the basis of French grades. The year was climaxed by a picnic held at North Park for French and Spanish Club members.

FRENCH CLUB—Seated: Mr. Gaiser, H. Mazuch, D. Oblack, B. Brown, B. Erny, B. Franceschina, S. Nesbit. Second Row: P. Gasparin, R. Dickerson, S. Pershing, S. Bowser, P. Voris, C. Black, J. Science Club

5-4-3-2-1—Halt!!!

Undaunted by initial failure and indecision, the Science Club conducted varied experiments and successfully completed two group projects. Their first project was a simple telescope, and their next project was the successful construction of an Estes Wind-Tunnel.

Consisting of approximately two dozen members, the club is affiliated with the National Science Foundation.

Latin Club

With pomp and ceremony, Imperator Bob Winner entered the banquet hall on a litter borne by slaves, preceded by dancing girls.

A Roman wedding spoken entirely in Latin and a gladiatorial battle preceded the banquet. Freshmen slaves served the guests a menu based on that of the Romans.

Fostering interest in Latin customs is the primary purpose of the Latin Club.

LATIN CLUB—First Row: S. Koon, K. Congilio, J. Wohlgemith, S. Bates, Mrs. Anderson, L. Murray, M. Truesdale, S. Fitzgerald, P. Lapinski, B. Ellis. Second Row: S. Lamb, V. Ferguson, L. Planet Dust

"Papers! Buy your papers! Buy a Planet Dust!" These words rang through the halls one Thursday each month when the Planet Dust appeared in the Butler County News Record.

The Planet Dust has been published for the second year by an established Journalism class. The staff was aided this year by the use of second year students who had gained valuable depth from their experience last year. The second semester, Journalism II students worked on other publications, such as the Planet yearbook.

Besides having their articles printed in the News Record, the staff also sent news stories to the Butler Eagle, Monitor, and the Richlander. In this way, school news was read by the entire community. The "Dust" staff has a scrapbook full of the year's events.

In an attempt to gain added knowledge and gain new ideas, the Planet Dust staff attended a convention held by the Pennsylvania School Press Association at Churchhill High School. They also visited the Butler County News Record in Zelienople to observe the operations which lead to the printed copies of the Planet Dust.

Last year, the National Scholastic Press Association gave the Planet Dust a "good" to "very good" rating for the editions published in the second semester.

Echoing across the gridiron, the eighteen trumpet fanfare was the trademark of the Royal Blue and Gold Varsity Marching Band. Under the direction of the new band instructor, DeWayne Simpson, the band emphasized block formation, precision marching, and a lively tempo. Special routines were developed not only for games, but also for street marching.

In October, the band played in the Mars Halloween Parade and in the Republican Rally for the approaching national election. The Royal Blue and Gold marched in the Veteran's Day parade in Butler and performed for the annual Buckwheat Supper held at the high school.

This year the band was invited to the Annual Invitational Concert at Richland and also played for the Memorial Day service at Mars. Band president James Barber was selected to represent Mars High at Pittsburgh Youth Symphony and played bassoon for the Duquesne University Symphony Orchestra.

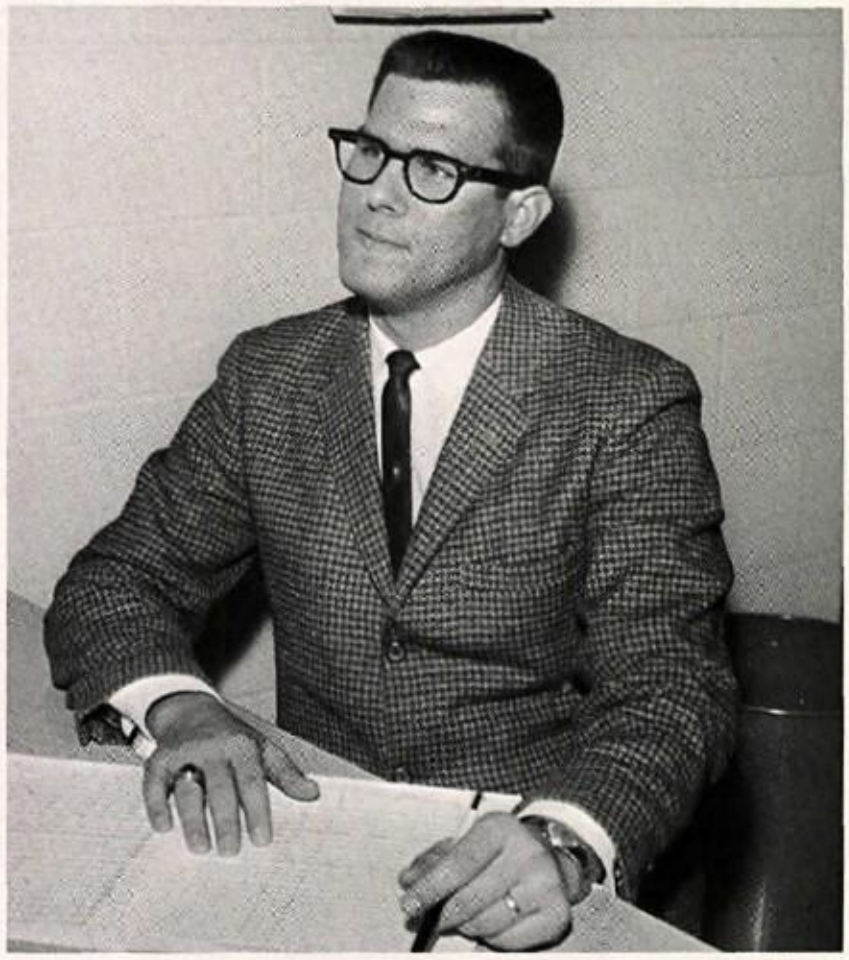
Block Formation

On May 14, the varisty band presented many fine selections in the annual spring band concert. The performance was enhanced by the lighting and backdrops which helped to produce the desired atmosphere.

This year Mars High was also honored by being host to the annual County Band concert, which was held on January 30. Fourteen Mars instrumentalists were among the 140 Band members chosen from schools in Butler County. Guest conductor was Dr. Richard Strange, assistant professor of music and director of Carnegie Tech's "Kiltie Band."

"The First Snowfall" was the theme of this year's Fantasy Ball. Open to the entire student body, the annual dance was held on December 29. Music was provided by "Frankie Sawhook's Orchestra." The ball reached the exciting climax when senior majorette Sharon Thompson was crowned "Fantasy Ball Queen" by band president James Barber and last year's queen, Connie Renick.

Awards and recognition were given to band members. Seniors were honored at the Richland game, which marked their final performance on the football field. During the Christmas program freshmen received patches, while the seniors had their band sweaters and letters presented to them.



NEW BAND DIRECTOR, Mr. Simpson, plans routines for the next game.

The Butler County Band was held at Mars Area High School January 30. More than 135 student musicians from Butler, Karns City, Knoch, Moniteau, Slippery Rock, Seneca Valley, and Mars took part in the concert. Fourteen Mars students participated.

The concert was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Music Educators' Association. The guest conductor was Dr. Richard E. Strange, assistant professor of music and director of the "Kiltie Band" at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

The Mars band director, Dewayne Simpson, was host band director. He introduced the program and conducted the first two selections.

Planet Staff

"Join the drive for '65" was the motto of the subscription sales campaign of the 1965 Planet yearbook. The yearbook, under the sponsorship of Mr. Thomas Hawkins, is not only a memory book for the students but also a public relations media promoting the Mars Area High School.

Composing the Planet staff are six different staffs: make-up, photography, finance, sports, typists, and literary.

The first task of the staff is to choose an appropriate theme for the yearbook. This year it was "individual differences." Not only must all the articles illustrate the theme, but any drawings inside the book and the cover must also be appropriate.

The 1964 Planet was awarded a first place rating by the National Scholastic Press Association. First place rating is the second highest rating any yearbook is awarded by the association.

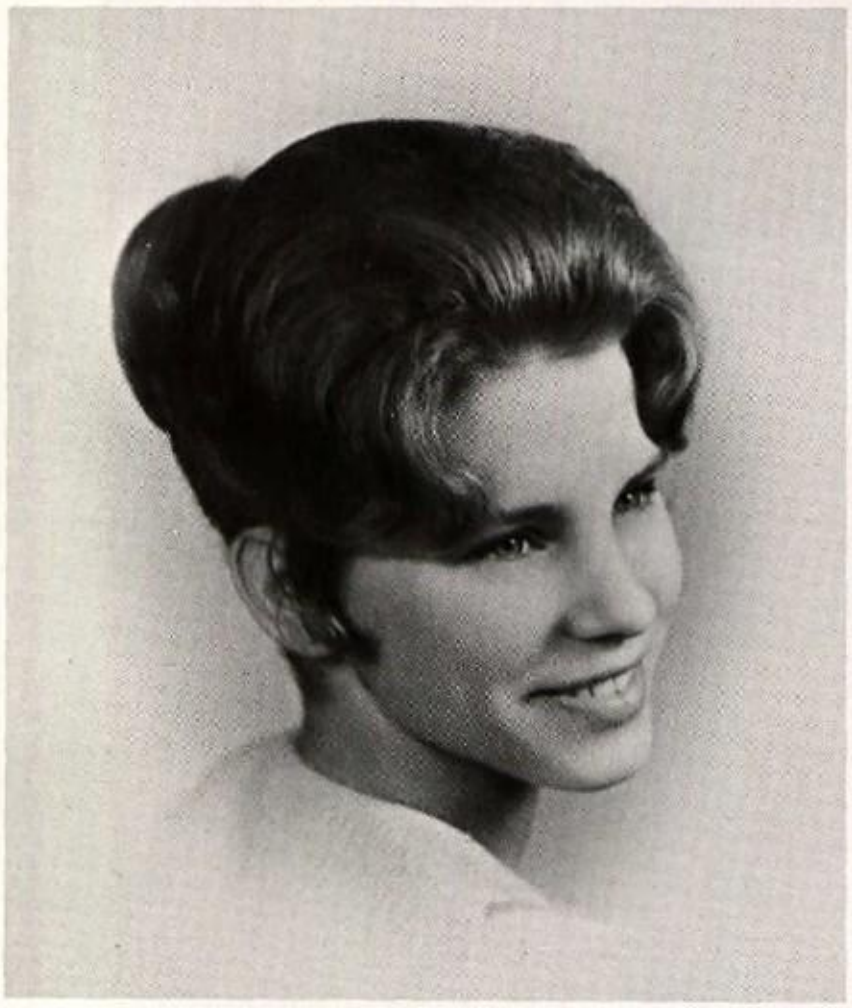
"Grecian Holiday" G. A. A. Dance



DIANE BLICHA—football queen.

Setting the mood for the annual Girls' Athletic Association dance was the theme "A Grecian Holiday." The school cafeteria, decorated with Grecian pillars and other similar designs, presented a very gala scene.

The highlight of the evening came when the former 1964 G.A.A. queen, Miss Kitty Briceland, crowned Diane Blicha the 1965 queen. Varsity football captain Dick Pauls presented Diane with a charm bracelet containing a miniature football with her name engraved on it. After the presentation, Diane was honored by a Queen's Dance, where the other varsity football players took part.

The organization is under the guidance of Mrs. Darlene Weinzetl, physical education teacher. Membership in the association is based on the athletic activities of the girls. Applications must be filled out and checked by former members before entrance into the club is completed.

VARSITY CAPTAIN, Cathy Aiken, urges spectators to "stand up and holler."

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS

"Are you rootin' for the boys? Yea, man! Are you makin' any noise? Sure, am! Well, give us a fight!"

This cheer and many others were repeated throughout the year by the varsity cheerleaders. As in past years the cheerleaders were very active in supporting both the football and basketball games.

"Tromp Northwestern" and "Ram the Rams" were only two of the many signs which were placed in the halls before each of the games. These signs and the "skits" at the pep rallies seemed to strengthen school spirit and get support from the students.

Something different occurred in the number of cheerleaders. The number rose from six to ten. This eliminated the junior varsity squad and also the confusion of who was going to cheer at the various games. A different squad of five was on hand for each game. This new situation gave the girls a chance to cheer and yet not be behind in their school work. A grade average of 2.5 was necessary to remain on the squad.

Practices were held throughout the summer and once a week during the athletic season so the girls could keep in shape and have the time to work out new cheers.

The girls were very loyal to the team members and the student body. They cheered for all they were worth. They cheered the team on to victory or stood behind them during a defeat—which helped a great deal in keeping the team alive with "fight."

Driver's Club

Safety was the goal which this organization endeavored to impress upon the whole of the student body. A skit was put on at Halloween to caution both the drivers and the halloweeners of the need to increase their vigilance. A windshield-washing campaign was inaugurated at one of the home football games. Advice on safety methods were conveyed at certain home basketball games.

Modern Dance

"Rhapsody in Blue," "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," and "Exodus" set the mood for the modern dance team. Their creative interpretations of the music conveyed their art to the audience.

The Modern Dance Team, under the direction of Mrs. Darlene Weinzetl, climaxed a year's work with performances at the senior talent show and the gym show.

TRIPLE TRIO rehearses with Mrs. Horwitz for the annual Christmas assembly.

TRIPLE TRIO

Select twelve attractive senior high girls and combine with popular Broadway show tunes. Stir with the hand of the school choral director, Mrs. Margaret Horwitz. Carefully blend in twelve voices until the desired harmony is reached. Add dance steps and stage maneuvers and for best results include a dash of enthusiasm and a pinch of determination. Dress in pastel evening gowns and set on a softly lighted stage. Christen the finished product the Mars High Triple Trio and behold the transformation of the former girls' ensemble.

Many hours of hard work after school contributed to the success of the group. They strived to achieve their goal which was to serve as a Mars Area High public relations media. Mrs. Horwitz felt that good music, sung well by talented girls, does a lot to advertise the work being done in the school.

The group also appeared in school programs and assemblies. One of their favorite selections, "Love Makes the World Go Round," entertained students at Christmas time. The members also doubled in the Performing Chorus and played reading roles in the musical, "South Pacific."

CHORUS OFFICERS—Patsy Campbell, Sec., Shawn Boyle, Treas., Suzanne Richter, Pres.

Dominating the cultural lives of sixty senior high students, the Performing Chorus successfully completed its initial year by presenting the musical "South Pacific."

Relaxation was stressed by the director, Mrs. Horwitz.

Mixing enjoyment with work, the chorus gained proper techniques of choral work. The chorus acquired experiences with frequent rehearsals; on-stage practices provided a familiarity with professional work.

Favorable results were evident in the first program presented to the student body at Thanksgiving.

Sonorous chords floated through the school halls as the chorus perfected their Christmas program. The goal of Mrs. Horwitz was to excell all past performances.

Laboriously they practiced, for the work of the chorus was just beginning. "South Pacific," Oscar Hammerstein's musical paradise, was scheduled for production in March. Through hard work, Mars High presented its first musical comedy to the public.

Time will offer new challenges. A sigh of relief was breathed as the final encore was given in "South Pacific." The job was finished.

"South Pacific."

ISLAND GIRLS and Luther Billis sing of "Bali Hai."

Mars Area High School's first musical, Rodgers and Hammerstein's "South Pacific", was presented March 12 and 13. It was performed by the Mars Area High School Performing Chorus.

The play took place on two South Pacific islands during World War II. The cast was composed of marines, sailors, sea-bees, nurses, and islanders.

Of greatest importance in the plot is the love affair between Nellie Forbush, a lively young nurse from Little Rock, Arkansas and Emile de Becque, a gallant, middle-aged French planter.

The romance between Lt. Joe Cable and the lovely Tonkinese girl, Liat, ends tragically with his death.

Bloody Mary, Liat's mother, is the shrewd operator of a souvenir trade. Luther Billis is the earthy seabee who performs in the Thanksgiving entertainment.

Erica Augustine and Kathleen Smith both played Nellie Forbush one night. Charles Long had the role of Emile de Becque. Nearly sixty students were in the cast.

Directed by Mrs. Margaret Horwitz, "South Pacific" was a sell-out both performances. Marlin Clay served as set designer and technical director. The dances were choreographed by Diane Blicha. Accompanists were James Barbera and Phyllis Cohen from Carnegie Tech. Senior high boys served as ushers.

Junior Class Play

"Why that's impossible! It's awful. We're not going to have a junior play!"

Students with drooping spirits had just attended a junior class meeting and filed from the auditorium, shocked by the news that had been revealed. The 1964 Junior Play was cancelled! A director could not be found.

All was not lost, however, since sensing the students disappointment, Mrs. Lois Latshaw and Mrs. Ida Mae Meckley volunteered for the wearisome job. Wes Horner was selected as student director.

Valuable time had been lost and so an accelerated schedule was prepared for a large cast. Undaunted, the directors modeled the cast into the comical characters of the play and after concentrated effort, the curtain was pulled. "The Thread that Runs so True" became a Martian reality.

With "mountainous" enthusiasm, the cast unravelled the "thread," Jesse Stuart's autobiography.

"Ask Any Girl"

A TYPICAL afternoon at Madison Avenue Girls Hotel.

Senior Play

Meg Wheeler has used statistics to get her way since she was fourteen. She used them to convince her parents that she should move to New York City. Once there, she lands a job working with statistics for a market research company.

Becoming interested in Evan Doughton, she can't seem to get him seriously interested in her. She persuades Miles Doughton, Evan's serious brother, to undertake a motivation research project. The object is to determine how the product (Meg) should be changed to please the consumer (Evan).

As far as unsuspecting Evan is concerned, the project is a success. Although the result of their project is not what they expected, Meg and Miles are pleasantly surprised by it.

This is the tale told by the senior class play "Ask Any Girl," which takes place at the Madison Avenue Girls Hotel in New York City. Directed by Mrs. Lois Latshaw, the play was given April 22 and 23. Virginia Anderson and Dave Hauserman acted as student directors.

Junior High Cheerleaders

Victory, victory is our cry! This cheer rang through the gym many times during the season coming from the Junior High cheerleaders.

This energetic group of girls tried to keep school spirit alive at each of their games. They helped in many ways to cheer the boys on to victory or to comfort them when a defeat occurred.

Some of the highlights this year were taking a major part in "varsity" pep rallies, selling programs at the home varsity football and basketball games, having their own pep rallies and helping to sponsor a student bus.

Any girl in seventh, eighth, or ninth grade was eligible to try out. Practices were held during the summer so that the girls were able to organize themselves and revise cheers. The girls that met the requirements for the squad have worked this year to cheer on the boys and create school spirit.

The girls have promised themselves to continue their job of keeping school spirit alive by trying out again next year.

Cadet Band

For the first time in several years the Cadet Band did not perform with the Varsity Band in a concert. This year they shared their concert program with the Junior High Chorus.

Cadet Band members not only gained valuable experience in concert music, but also played in the pep rally for the Richland football game and for a basketball rally.

Under the direction of Mr. Simpson, new band director, the members received special attention through weekly sectional practice in addition to the regular rehearsals. They all hope to become Varsity Band members.

Junior Chorus

The junior high students participating in the Junior Chorus realized the necessity of music in modern life. The means to this end were facilitated by the charms of lyrics and melody.

The fundamentals of chorus work were first instilled by unpretentious songs. Later, the intricacy of the music increased and the love of singing was stressed.

No serious program was performed, but these seventy sets of vocal chords will hopefully bind the musical program of the school in the future.

The staff attended a convention held by the Pennsylvania School Press Association at Churchhill High School.

The staff acquired experience in composition and gained an interest in journalism.

Reading Club

Reading can be the key to the world. It will always provide entertainment and is the basis of school work. The seventh grade Reading Club, sponsored by Mrs. Vida Hudson, was formed to instill a love of this valuable art in the members.

The club holds monthly meetings in the library. Books are reviewed by members and followed by a general discussion on the worth of the book.

7th and 8th Grade Art Clubs

Education is many things. It is learning and studying, building and creating. In the Eighth Grade Art Club, students combined materials and talents to create pictures of charcoal and crayon. Guided by Mr. Marvin Clay and Miss Mary Ann Gardner, various types of art forms, such as water color and spatterwork which were produced, enhanced the school lives of the students and improved the atmosphere of the school.

Take just one piece of construction paper and hand it to a member of the Art Club and what do you get back? —a beautiful creation.

Operating the curtain, changing the lights, and producing sound effects were only a few of the many jobs performed by the stage crew. All background activities and other chores necessary for a performance were the responsibility of this group.

They assisted in the Junior and Senior Class Plays, the assemblies, the production of South Pacific, Band concerts, and the Pixie Playhouse.

PROJECTIONISTS—B. Hasley, Mr. Papik, J. Knox, J. McCandless, Mr. Henicheck, D. Brailey, J. Boyle, D. Campbell, G. Comely.

Convenience and education were only two of the advantages which this organization succeeded in fulfilling.

Education of its membership in the correct use and operation of the various apparatus was the prime objective of the organization. Teachers could rest assured that the equipment would be available when needed, thus alleviating many worries and misgivings they might have had in connection with their lesson plan.

In addition to the audio-visual aids which have been acquired in the past, a technifax developer and a copier were introduced this year.

The desire of the school administration to have an instructional materials centers will be extensively enhanced by the contribution the Projectionists Club offers. Composed of nineteen members, this club meets periodically for the purpose of discussion, instruction, and work. These hard-working individuals rightfully deserve the acclaim which was often omitted for the numerous services which they performed.

Mr. Clement Papik, himself a new teacher at Mars, is the sponsor of this industrious organization. He personally maintains the orderliness that is characteristic of the audio-visual aids room.

F.B.L.A.

From the labyrinth of clicking typewriters and whirring office machines emerges a group of people distinct in their chosen career. These are the Future Business Leaders of America.

Members were primarily concerned with preparing for the business world. Annual subject skill contests served as a goal to stimulate the members.

Under the leadership of Miss Aloe, the members undertook the task of soliciting for Butler County Heart Fund in the Mars Area School district.

Office Aids

Typing, filing, answering the telephone! A secretary's work is never done! Composed of senior members of the commercial department, the Office Aids assist the school secretaries and the guidance department.

Gaining experience for future employment is the main purpose of the group. No matter what the field in the business world, the experience they gained forms a firm foundation for future employment.

Under a cooperative program with business, many of the girls worked in business offices part time.

Varsity Club

Pulling together, the club strived for a number of common goals and accomplished them by working as a team.

As is necessary for any goal one hopes to attain, money was an inevitable problem. Some of their fund raising projects included faculty games for Varsity, Jr. Varsity and Jr. High Awards. With their proceeds they sponsored the athletic banquet and bought letter sweaters for Varsity and Jr. Varsity Award winners.

Hobby Club

A model car contest was the climax of the Hobby Club's year. The contest was open to any student, not just club members. Recognition was given to applicants whose entries were considered best of the show.

The creative ability and skill of the members was developed through the activities of the club. Their imagination and knowledge is also increased.

The club is sponsored by Mr. Marlin Clay.

Debate Club

Building citizenship requires a basic knowledge of government and the ability to express one's views fluently. This year a new club, the Debate Club, under the guidance of Mrs. Shirley Kelly, was taught to interpret eminent issues, take a stand, and support their position. Such topics as foreign aid and the school dress code were discussed during the course of the year.

On October 31, they held a car wash, the profits going toward the purchase of debate and research books.

Library Aids

Aiding Mrs. Vida Hudson, the school librarian, is the job of the Library Aids. Thess students gave up free periods to assist with such tasks as card filing, repairing books, and checking on overdue books and fines.

December 15 was the date of the annual faculty tea given by the group. The students served tea, cookies, and candy to the teachers and administration.

Future Nurses

The newly organized Future Nurses of America, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Helen Knaell, R.N., included girls interested in a nursing career.

The club undertook such projects as field trips to different hospitals, helping out with the "shot" programs and lending a helping hand to students who had the misfortune of wearing crutches this past year.

Throughout the year the girls also tried to develop better understanding about nursing through the aids of movies and lectures.

Camera Club

Look at the birdie! Throughout the year, the camera club of Mars High kept an eye on the birdie and focused their sight on learning the art-science, photography. This group of young camera buffs desired to see their photos printed in the Planet or the Planet Dust. The aim was fulfilled by experimentation.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Foster and Mr. Hawkins, pictures with improved quality were made for both pleasure and purpose. The initial year was one of experimenting. Future years should be marked by contributions and pride.

Season a Success

HEAD COACH Paul Douds and assistant Clement Papik discuss Richland game with captains Jim McCandless (25) and Dick Pauls (67).

Looking back over the season leaves many things to be said.

It was a rough year for the Planets but a good year at the same time. Despite the poor record of 2 wins and 6 losses the team played well. From the beginning up through the season's end, injuries to key personnel hurt the Planets.

After the first five games the Planets were winless and it was said, "The boys never gave up." The team fought hard in every game and were rewarded with victories over Center and Richland.

Standouts for the team were quarterback, Steve Leone, halfbacks, Jim McCandless and Dave Wilds, guard, Dick Pauls, and center, Jack Reddinger. The passing and running of Leone, Wilds, and McCandless plus the fine line play of Pauls and Reddinger were instrumental in leading the team. Many of the 24 men who lettered this year will remain next year. With these lettermen back and a few breaks, next year's season should be a good one.

Football Resume

Mars vs. Knoch (20-7) Lost. In the lid lifter of the 1964 season the traditional battle was decided with a 13 point scoring drive by Knoch in the fourth quarter. Bright aspects of the game for the Planets were the passing of Steve Leone and running of Jim McCandless, which enabled Mars to score.

Mars vs. Union (25-0) Lost. The Planets journeyed to rain soaked Newcastle for their first away game. The adverse weather conditions stymied the Planet running and passing game, and the men from Union had no trouble. They took the initial kickoff and literally sunk the Planets.

Mars vs. Northwestern (7-0) Lost. The rain followed Mars to their home field and a defensive battle was the story of their game. Fine passing by Leone plus the running of Hasley and Wilds made for an interesting game, but a pass interception in the final minute of play resulted in a heartbreaking loss for the Planets.

Mars vs. Hampton (48-6) Lost. Fullback, Doug Barber and quarterback, Steve Leone teamed up for a touchdown, but the Planets were completely outclassed in this game. Hampton had little opposition and presented a fine offensive thrust as well as a stiff defense.

Mars vs. East Deer (13-6) Lost. In a bitterly contested battle, the East Deer Bucks managed to score the winning touchdown in the final frame. A beautiful punt return by Dave Wilds set up the Planets score but this wasn't enough as the losing streak continued to five in a row.

Mars vs. Center (25-14) Won. Victory came at last for the Planets in a hard fought game. Center scored twice to hold a 14-7 lead in the first half. The second half proved big for the Planets as Jim McCandless, Dave Wilds, and Steve Leone provided an overpowering offense. The defense picked up incentive as the Planets proved too tough for the Tigers of Center.

Mars vs. Bellevue (41-0) Lost. The powerful Bellevue "B" Champions were just too strong for the Planets, offensively and defensively. The game saw the loss of two fine backs, Doug Barber and Bill Hasley, in one of the worst defeats the Mars Planets have suffered in many seasons.

Mars vs. Richland (19-12) Won. A big second quarter plus a real team effort made the Planets' season a success. Once again Dave Wilds, Jim McCandless, and the defensive squad turned in fine performances to down the Rams. The game not only topped the season, but it also sent Richland home still looking for a victory.

COACH PAPIK confers with spotters over the two-way radio.

The Junior Varsity Football team experienced a poor season in 1964. Like the Varsity, they suffered many injuries while playing a rough schedule. Despite their poor record of 1-6, a bright spot was the running of Junior fullback Larry Fox. In their only victory, over Etna, he paced the Junior Planets to victory. Also, valuable experience was gained by the whole team for next season.

Varsity Basketball

The 1965 WPIAL season of play was, for the Mars Planets, a long one. New head coach Michael Crist and his team faced a rough schedule. This was the first season that a Mars basketball team had played in WPIAL competition. The Mars team won only 4 of 12 non-league games, and could capture only a single league game. Mars was last in its section with a record of one win and ten losses. The total season record was 5 wins and 17 losses.

The Planets had almost an even record before league play began. Then they hit an eleven game losing streak. Despite a fine start in many of the games, there was usually one quarter in which the men from Mars would fall behind. This quarter often proved fatal, and cost the team several games.

The most important win during the season was against a tough Rochester team. This win knocked Rochester out of a three-way tie for first place. It was a close game, Mars winning 69-68.

A great amount of experience was gained throughout the season by both the juniors and sophomores. This experience should help to improve next year's record a great deal.

Varsity Planets

COACH CRIST discusses strategy with his team.

Even though the Planets had a poor team record, there were several fine individual showings. Senior Jim McCandless demonstrated his great rebounding skill throughout the entire season. Offensively, Jim contributed 132 points. Assisting Jim under the boards were juniors Dave Foster, who scored 130 points, and Bob Stanzaki, who scored 73 points.

The leading scorer on the team was senior Rich Fitzgerald. In each of ten games he scored 20 or more points, including 33 against New Wilmington. Also, he led the team in field goals and in foul-shooting percentage.

Another senior, Steve Leone, contributed 186 points to the offensive attack. During the season he played out front and under the boards, doing a fine defensive job.

Junior Bob Cleva was second in scoring with 285 points in foul-shooting and field goals. After scoring in the double figures in most of the games, he was chosen to be on the second all-star team of section 14-A of the WPIAL.

Sophomore Chuck Clark, who played on the Varsity the last half of the season, accounted for 78 points. He played well for the Varsity, once scoring 19 points against Rochester.

Have Even Season

Coach Nancy Church led the varsity girls in the first even season for many years. In a disappointing season premiere, Mars varsity girls dropped their first game to Knoch. Back on their own floor for the next, the Planets defeated Fox Chapel for their first victory. Mars held Richland to a three-point lead at the half, but in the third quarter the Rams proved too much for Mars. A second win was scored against Seneca Valley. An away game with Fox Chapel added another win to the varsity record. After tieing the game in the third quarter, the Planets lost their second contest with Knoch. The varsity team picked up two more wins over Slippery Rock and Seneca Valley. Losses to Vincentian and Richland ended the season with an even five wins and five losses.

The varsity girls also participated in the Richland Tournament at the Richland Youth Foundation. Mars met defeat at the hands of Sharpsburg and Richland to place fourth among seven participating schools.

Linda Hood, high-scoring varsity forward, was awarded an all-star trophy for outstanding ability in the tournament games.

The junior varsity team started their season off slowly, but picked up in the second half to end the season with four wins and five losses. The high point of their record was a win over Knoch.

The boys' gym team gives junior and senior high school students, who excel in gymnastics, a chance to participate in a spring sport. The boys' team, sponsored by Mr. Paul Douds, will have its third annual gymnastics exhibition, with the girls gym team, on May 6. The hard work of the team is pointed toward this exhibition, because the team has not yet started competition.

The team consists of boys specializing on one or more of the following pieces of gym equipment: trampoline, still rings, parallel bars, side horse, and the free floor exercises. To be elected to the team a boy must be proficient on three of these apparatuses.

Boys And Girls Gym Team

The time and energy of this year's girls' gym team was directed toward the annual gymnastic exhibition. Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Darlene Wienzetl, the girls combined with the boys' gym team to present the gym show May 6.

To be chosen for the team a girl must be proficient on two or more pieces of apparatus. The team works on the balance beam, rings, trampoline, tumbling, horse, and free exercise.

After-chool practices were scheduled in which they practiced their routines for the annual show.

Gym team sweatshirts will be awarded to new girls on the team.

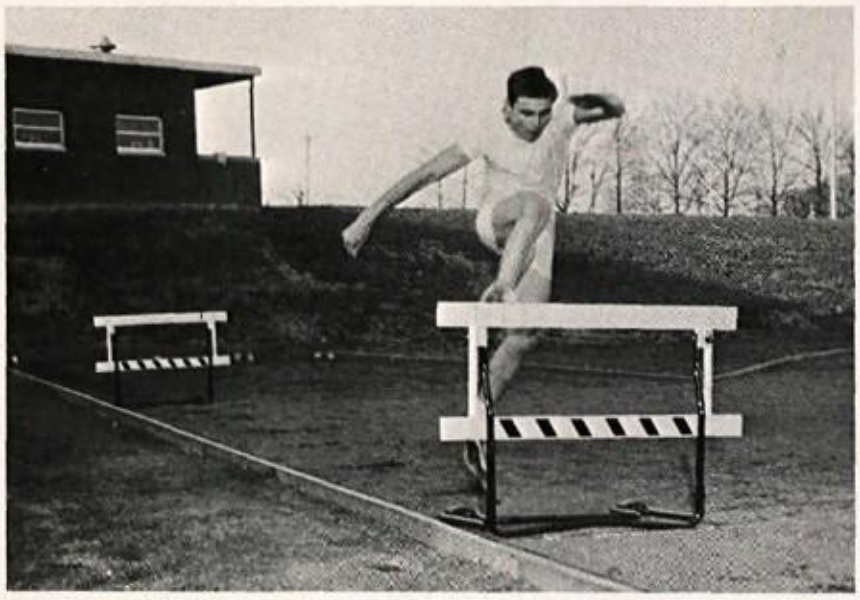
GOLF TEAM

The spring of 1965 saw the largest golf team on the fairways for Mars High School. Under head coach, Michael Crist, and his assistant, Gerald Dambach, the team played out at the Bakerstown Golf Course. The nucleus of the team was composed of Steve Leone, Pete Laskovich, and Jack Reddinger. These three seniors provided the scoring punch and were capably backed up by seven sophomores. These sophomores were Clyde Weller, Bill Johnston, Bob Winner, Roy Park, David Burk, Bob Burk, and Chris Bruce. The team competed in match play in the W.P.I.A.L.

A great amount of interest has been shown in the golf team. The sophomores are gaining experience this year which will be needed for the next year's team.

In early season matches the team achieved a great deal more successes than in the previous year. Golf, one of the country's leading forms of recreation, has proved to be a welcome addition to the extracurricular slate of activities at Mars High School. This is evident by the increasing number of students participating in and supporting the team.

Track: A New Spring Sport



DON PHILLIPS leaps hurdles.

JIM HOFFMAN tries the pole-vault.

A new sport, track, was introduced to the Mars student body during the 1964-65 school year. This sport was met with enthusiasm by the entire student body. A great number of boys were active in the sport which covered a large variety of events. The 120-yard high hurdles, 100-yard dash, two-mile run, 880-yard, 220-yard, mile relay, and the two-mile relay were all included in the track events. The field events included the shot, pole-vault, discus, high jump, broad jump, hop-skip-jump, and the javelin. These events improved both physical condition and individual character.

Due to the great number of track and field events, more boys were active in track than in any other sport. Unlike other sports, track gave each participant a chance to be active in the sport throughout the season.

The track team was under the able direction of Coach Gerald Dambach. Coach Dambach kept the boys on their toes, in order that they would always be able to give one hundred per cent.

Track, as a new spring sport, hopes to prove very successful.
